1999 - 2003 Web site Hits

Notes: In case you wonder what I do with the statistics I gather off my pages, well, here they are! Initially, statistics were gathered on the 25th of September and October, 1999. Beginning November, 1999, statistics will be gathered on the 1st of each month, and reported in the above format. Initially I reported monthly stats in the format shown below. All statistics are culmulative to date, i.e., November's totals are for the whole web site since it was published on the Web August 25, 1999.

However, the fun in stats is to be able to compare changes over time (the epidemiologist in me).

Note Statheads - Besides just reporting cumulative hits per month, it is now possible to report total monthly hits, which may provide a better indication of trends in page utilization.

July 2, 2000 - I will no longer be actively tracking which pages hit 1000, as the explosion of the Public Health Jobs Page makes this a no-brainer (I hate this term, but it's appropriate for this). Thanks.

July 2, 2000 - I will no longer be actively tracking this as the types of domains have not changed since I started doing this. But, they are kept here in case you are interested.

TOP THREE DOMAINS

| RANK | April, 2000 (n=83) | May, 2000 (n=85) | June, 2000 (n=103) |

| #2 | Education (13.3%) | Education (14.1%) | Commercial (11.7%) |
| #3 | Commercial (10.8%) | Commercial (11.8%) | Education (10.7%) |

Note: Beginning 4/1/2000, I will be reporting the top 3 domains on the basis of the top domain reported for each page that I have this statistic for. Prior to this, the top 3 domains were based only on the hits to the Home Page, which really does not reflect what's happening to the rest of the Web site. I believe that reporting the distribution of domains across all web pages that are tracked will provide a better indication of the actual domains that come to visit. Of course, getting these data requires 3 hours a month to compile (FYI).
